

Show News Continued

Left to right, SCAD's ANRC National Division winning team: Meredith Denny and Knights Watch, Tatum Tatreau and Audition, Madison Albano and Elliott, Kate Morrison and Dalliance
Photos courtesy of SCAD

Savannah College of Art and Design (SCAD) hosted the 2017 ANRC National Intercollegiate Equitation Championship in April. This is the second time that SCAD hosted the event at the university's Ronald C. Waranch Equestrian Center, a 100-acre facility that includes 13 turnout pastures, 3 large outdoor arenas, an indoor arena—ideal for competing and practicing in all weather conditions—and a derby course. The grounds feature two state-of-the-art barns for the university's and student riders' horses, and has been recognized by the American Institute of Architects (AIA) Savannah with the 2015 Excellence Award. Widely thought of as one of the most stunning equestrian centers in the collegiate sport, it has been deemed “a masterpiece in its own right” by Garden & Gun magazine. The SCAD Bees solidified its position as a top equitation team at the event, winning the National Team Division for the 10th time in 13 years, including three out of the last four years. SCAD also won the Novice Team Division for the third consecutive year. This marks the second time that SCAD has achieved the historic feat of winning both the National and Novice Team Divisions at the event. Several SCAD riders took home individual honors as well, with Meredith Denny named National Division High Point Rider, Tatum Tatreau (who is Cacchione Cup qualified) named Reserve National Division High Point Rider, and Hannah Hlopak named Novice Division High Point Rider.

Mark Your Calendar

Extreme Mustang Makeover

The Jacksonville Equestrian Center will host the Extreme Mustang Makeover from May 18 - 20, 2017. Trainers from across the country have spent 100 days turning a wild mustang into an adoptable companion, and this exciting event gives them the chance to showcase their mustang's new skills and demeanor at the public competition. Even more exciting? Cash and prizes are on the line. The ultimate goal: to find a home for their mustang. Through a bidding process held at the event, the public is invited to adopt or purchase one of the iconic horses. For more information, visit www.extrememustangmakeover.com.

Vermont Summer Festival Photo by Andrew Ryback Photography

The six-week Vermont Summer Festival will return July 4 through August 13, 2017, marking the event's 24th consecutive season of competitive and spectator-friendly hunter, jumper, and equitation competition at Harold Beebe Farm in East Dorset, Vermont. With a legacy of offering top competition from the pony ranks to the grand prix level, the Vermont

Summer Festival has developed a reputation as an exhibitor-favorite for riders from the eastern and Midwestern states of the U.S., as well as Canada. “From weekly exhibitor parties to taking pride in the appearance of our grounds, we do our best to be a show that exhibitors look forward to returning to each year,” said Ruth Lacey, marketing director of the Vermont Summer Festival. “As a result, our weeks sell out and the events are very competitive. We really enjoy hosting riders, their horses, and even their families, and we also encourage our visitors to experience what southern Vermont has to offer by way of shopping, dining, and outdoor activities.”

Beth Underhill and Count Me In Photo by Jump Media

World-class show jumping returns to the heart of Canada's national capital this summer with the ever-growing Ottawa Equestrian Tournaments – now including three weeks of competition. The all-new Ottawa Welcome Horse Show kicks off June 21-25, followed by the Ottawa National Horse Show running July 12-16. The CSI₃* Ottawa International Horse Show takes center stage from July 19-23 at Wesley Clover Parks. Features of the Ottawa National Horse Show include a $20,000 Open Welcome, a $50,000 Grand Prix, and a $10,000 Canadian Hunter Derby. The CSI₃* Ottawa International Horse Show will offer a $40,000 Open Welcome and a $100,000 Grand Prix finale. For details, visit www.wesleycloverparks.com.

In The News

The Pennsylvania National Horse Show has merged its Association and 501c3 Foundation into a single entity, the Pennsylvania National Horse Show Foundation. The Foundation will maintain its established 501c3 status and all contributions and sponsorships will enjoy the